Whites Defiant in Howard Beach

According to police, shortly before midnight on December 20th, 1986, a car carrying four adult male Blacks broke down on a highway next to Howard Beach which is the White section of Queens, New York. One Black was left in the car while the other three went into Howard Beach toward the subway. But first they stopped at New Park Pizza where hostile words were exchanged with a group of White kids. The police were called in to investigate "three suspicious Black males" but found them eating pizza and left. Later a group of White youths returned to confront the Blacks when they left the pizzeria. Police say the Blacks were attacked with baseball bats and tree limbs, and during the course of it one of the Blacks, Michael Griffith,23, tried to flee across a highway and was killed by an oncoming car.

SELECTIVE OUTRAGE

Such acts of senseless racial violence are inevitable in a multiracial society and occur in America on a daily basis. What was unusual about this case is that it was Whites attacking Blacks rather than vice versa. That being the case, the System acted with its full capacity for hypocrisy. The Jewish mayor of New York City, Edward Koch, called the beatings a "racial lynching" and vowed vengeance. Koch also ordered more multiracial indoctrination of children in NYC's public schools. Yet when gangs of Blacks mug a White man or rape a White woman, which occurs many times each day in NYC, Koch says nothing. His outrage is politically selective as it is with all of the System's whores - those we call politicians. Washington D.C., for example, is over 80% Black and the vast majority of violent crime is committed by Blacks, yet according to the Justice Department the majority of the victims are White. Why is there no outrage over this?

Ted Koppel, ABCs nighttime news entertainer, who is also a Jew, referred to the alleged attackers as "White thugs". But we remember quite well that Koppel always referred to the four juveniles who tried to shake down Bernhard Goetz on a New York subway as "Black youths". That is most interesting because the "Black youths" all had criminal records and two were armed with sharpened screwdrivers on the day of the incident. To date not one of the 11 White teenagers arrested in Howard Beach has been accused by the press of having a criminal record. As we reported in the Dec85 issue of The Nationalist, one of the Black "youths" that Goetz "victimized", James Ramseur, was charged in May of 1985 with raping an 18 year old girl. Another, Barry Allen, was charged in October of 1985 with stealing a gold chain. The third, Troy Canting, pleaded guilty to a robbery that occurred prior to the subway incident. Only the fourth "youth", Darrell Cabey has managed to stay out of jail since the incident because he was paralyzed by one of Goetz's bullets. Yet these Blacks are "youths" and the Whites are "thugs" according to Koppel.

THE SYSTEM MUST DIE

The Whites of Howard Beach do not have to be reminded of facts such as these, as they must live with the terror that the System has created in its multiracial madness. Unlike the leaders of the Establishment, they cannot escape to the plush, secure apartment buildings of Manhatten, or the rich suburbs in Connecticut. Unlike the politicians, they cannot afford to send their kids to expensive public schools to escape the reality of Black violence, so they fight desperately to keep their neighborhoods pure of racial pollution. But they fight vainly, for only destruction of the System can save them. When the day comes that ordinary people like those in Howard Beach realize that awesome truth, a shudder will travel up the spine of the corrupt Establishment and the White Race will begin to rejuvenate.

WHITES DEFY REDS AND BLACKS

A week after the incident at New Park Pizza, the communist Socialist Workers Party and the NAACP organized a march through Howard Beach to tell the Whites there how evil they are. Nearly a thousand Blacks and Reds showed up, but instead of shame they found defiance. Police cordons protected the marchers, and police prevented about 100 White youths from following the marchers to the rally site at a local high school.

At the rally one naive Blackwoman suggested the singing of the Star-Spangled Banner "because after all, we are the USA." She was immediately hooted down and the crowd sang a Negro spiritual.

Many of the Whites at Howard Beach were brave enough to give their names and opinions to the press. Others argued with or heckled the protesters until the police moved them on. "This is a circus," said John Santinello, a truck driver,"This is grandstanding. Where were these people two weeks ago when a Black shot six cops." Janet Adrian, a 52 year old housewife, angrily confronted a group of Blacks and shouted,"Our mothers and fathers walk the streets, and Blacks come up and pull the chains off their necks! We don't protest!"

No we don't protest, because the System has stripped the White Race of its racial consciousness. Our "leaders" want us to see ourselves as individuals, and as individuals we are alone and we are nothing. Only when we identify with our Race and see ourselves as one Great People will we cease to be prey to the Blacks and Jews, communists and capitalists.

Some postscripts: 1) one of the poor, gentle, oppressed Blacks attacked in Howard Beach was arrested a week later for stabbing his girlfriend, 2) a White on a bus in the Jamaica section of Queens was attacked by a score of Blacks chanting "Howard Beach" - Mayor Koch blustered no outrage over the incident and vowed no vengeance, 3) Koch was heckled by Whites when he attended a Catholic Church service in Howard Beach, and 4) White Catholic priests, unaccompanied by any of their White parishioners, attended the funeral service for Griffith, no doubt to bemoan the evil in their White flock. GG

Flawed From the Beginning

Essay by Matt Malone

The basic notion of democracy is that the majority should rule. The System hypocritcally applies this standard to non-White regions like Africa, yet in countries such as America or Great Britain White culture is attacked or ignored while minority power for Jews, Blacks, Hispanics and Asians grows steadily.

The idea of White Americans having some say in their future, as Whites, is quickly and harshly condemned. We are told that non-Whites would suffer from such a policy, nevermind what happens to the White way of life in the meantime. In countries where Whites still form the bulk of the population, minority rule, without exception, is the rule.

However, this is nothing new. It harks back to the very beginning of our present System and the adoption of the Constitution. Not all of our founding fathers were pleased with the document which embodied the doctrine called federalism. Many, such as Thomas Jefferson and George Mason, were opposed to its fundamental design, saying that it was a class system designed to ensure the control of the government by an economic elite. This is the definition of plutocracy, not democracy.

CHECKS AND BALANCES

The institution of checks and balances was largely created by James Madison whose plan was to place as much of the government as possible beyond the control of the majority. The checks and balances were designed to stymie the will of the masses in order to protect the power and wealth of Madison's favorite minority - the rich. It was a conservative system designed to prevent major change or at least slow its pace. The form of government was called a republic because it was obvious to everyone of intelligence that it was not a democracy, indeed, federalists such as Gouverneur Morris and Alexander Hamilton were openly anti-democratic. Federalist John Jay believed that "the people who own the country ought to govern it." As political scientist Robert Lineberry explains,"The structure of the Madisonian system made it easy for economic elites to protect themselves from popular majorities."

Our early government utilized many devices to prevent popular control and overthrow of the wealthy. Instead of a broadly based vote, it originally relied on the electoral college to choose presidents. The idea was that the common people did not have enough sense to pick the right leader.

Thomas Jefferson trusted people's sense and believed that education would enhance good citizenship. He saw man as basically good and felt that he could express that good through democratic government, whereas the federalists saw man as fundamentally evil and so sought to prevent him from acting. Jefferson's dream of a knowledgeable electorate has been de-

Madison and Jefferson disagreed bitterly when it came to designing a government for America. Unfortunately, Jefferson was in Paris when the Constitutional Convention was called and Madison's Federalism won the field.

ATTEND THE RALEIGH RALLY!

On Sunday January 18th, 1987, the Southern National Front will conduct a march and rally in support of the Afrikaner Resistance Movement led by Eugene Terre Blanche. The event will be held in Raleigh, North Carolina and assembly for the march will begin at 1:30pm at the corner of Lane and McDowell Streets which is State Parking Lot #2.

Gary Gallo will speak at this rally on behalf of the National Democratic Front. We urge all members and supporters of the NDF to attend if at all possible. Transportation will be provided from Washington, D.C. If you have any questions call NDF headquarters at (301) 670-958I.

feated through the very system of public mass education that he proposed. Our children are taught such nonsense in the schools about how their government works and about their own history that an article like this will come as a shock to the majority of them. They are as ignorant about politics now as they ever were. One of the greatest tasks before the NDF is to teach our people things that they should have been taught in school.

SELF-FULFILLING PROPHECY

The classical liberals who supported the Constitution spouted the myth that power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely in order to justify a system in which the actions of any one branch could be checked and defeated by another. In fact, the system encouraged corruption because good leaders shy away from a system in which they are deprived of the power to act. Good men want to leave lasting achievements for their people and realize that they need great power in order to accomplish great things. In self-fulfilling prophecy, the republican form of government attracted those who sought influence to increase their wealth, as the system worked quite well for that. For them a little power corrupted absolutely, as they were absolutely corrupt. The special interests have been able to easily manipulate such men with mutually profitable deals - campaign money in exchange for legislative favors.

The honest man who is driven by the need for excellence has always been disgusted by American politics. Those rare men with creative leadership ability who do go into politics find themselves unable to implement quick and productive reforms as it takes years for policy to even be considered, let alone executed. Lincoln found himself completely frustrated in his efforts to colonize the slave population back to Africa. Huey Long found that he had to circumvent the System or rather overthrow it as a practical matter, if not as a legal matter, in order to get anything done in Lousiana. Both Lincoln and Long were called dictators by their enemies, and indeed they were, as only dictatorship can overcome the entrenched power of wealth in order to make government work for the people.

WHITE WILL FRUSTRATED

What has the lack of majority rule cost us? The soldiers of the American Revolution who founded the United States were White men, mostly farmers and workers. The citizens of America are still mostly workers and farmers yet their interests have been lost in the shuffle. Madison and the boys did their job well, the capitalist elite has been able to dominate the country since the beginning and today it still shapes the law for its own benefit, perhaps more than ever before.

The political plutocrats, like the Rockefellars and the Morgans of the business world, care for themselves only and think of money above all else. To them position and privilege are always more important than true philanthropy. The White bosses were deaf to the tragedy of the White laborer and always sold out to race-mixing for money, rather than protect their own. As a result non-Whites, especially Jews, have found their niche in the government and corporations, where they can carefully provide for their own racial interests.

If there had been "majority rule" in this land with the average White American's view represented by honest and just leaders, the outcome would have been far different. Capitalist monopolies and plutocratic hold over the the establishment would have been impossible from the start. Once people began thinking in terms of the nation as a whole the plural interests would have been identified and condemned and the true elites would have risen to educate and lead their people to greatness.

Most important, racial integration would likely have never taken place had the average White had his say. In our history in was the poor White Southern farmer, the majority, who opposed slavery as it kept him in poverty. Workers in the North were adamently opposed to Blacks being freed to settle in their communities - let them go elsewhere. Many of the early labor organizations, such as the American Railway Union, specifically excluded non-Whites as members.

The ordinary White men and women of America have often violently rebelled when the race-mixing plutocrats pushed them to the wall. This occurred in the race riots of 1863 in New York City, the Chicago riots in 1918, the Boston anti-busing riots of the 1970s, and more recently the desperate attempts by the White community in south Philadelphia to prevent Blacks from moving into their already diminished neighborhood. But unfortunately, Whites have more often chosen to run rather than fight the full power of the state. So whole cities have been depopulated of Whites.

Yet neither Democrat or Republican, liberal or conservative, has listened to the cries of White distress. As recent studies indicate, most Whites have abandoned the established political parties as they feel that the conventional parties have abandoned them. Barely. 37% of the electorate bothered to turn out to vote in last November's federal election, despite massively expensive media campaigns complete with movie stars telling the people that it is their duty and great privilege to vote. The people see little difference between the two major parties, except for the names of the special interests that each chooses to represent. And the most powerful special interests, such as the Jews, are represented by both parties even when their interests obviously conflict with those of America. The plutocrats think that the people do not see this; they take the disgusted silence of the people as ignorance or acquiesence. But the people will remain apathetic only until they see a real alternative with some hope of taking power arise out of the political quagmire. Then the plutocrats will be shocked to see how much power and energy the people really have, and they will panic when they see how quickly their schemes become undone. But then it will be too late for amends. MM

Minitel Revolutionizes Computer Use

In a plutocratic society the rich ruling class shapes the law for its own benefit, and so government intervention in the marketplace usually ends as an economic disaster for the common man. This is because the purpose for such state action is almost always to benefit some special interest group, even though it is inevitably touted as a program that will serve the public at large. But in France the Minitel initiative has proven to be the exception to the rule.

The Minitel is a small combination computer terminal and telephone that connects to the standard French telephone socket. It consists of a screen and fold-down keyboard, and it costs less than $200.00 except that nobody buys it. The state-owned telephone company gives it away to its clients, and so far 2,500,000 have been installed in homes and offices around the country. This has created a mass market for videotex services that sell all sorts of information via computer. Says Georges Nahon, the managing director of Intelmatique that markets the Minitel,"France is the only country... where there is a mass market of compatible terminals. Our aim was to create a new communications network and let the services take care of themselves. Most other countries took the opposite approach."

FRENCH VIDEOTEX SERVICES PROSPER

The French government gets its money back in the form of fees for user time, and these amount to approximately $15.00 for every hour of Minitel use on the phone lines. The government gets half the money and the other half goes to the videotex company that the consumer used. Thousands of videotex services have been established by private companies in the five years since the Minitel program began. The government provides only one videotex service and that is an electronic phonebook. Simply by dialing a phone number a Frenchman can enter the nationwide computer network and select a service. On the terminal he can look for a job, shop, check his bank balance, sell his car, make a blind date, play a video game, read a newsletter or report, do library research, submit a question to a politician, engage in a debate, etc., etc., etc. The system receives 47 million calls a month compared to only a half million calls per month to videotex services in America.

In the U.S. many videotex services have gone bankrupt and none has proven particularly successful for lack of a mass market of compatible computers. In fact the home computer does not really exist in America. Most computers in this country are purchased for business use because are they just too expensive for family use. Just a typical American modum that allows a person to connect his computer to the phone line costs almost as much as the Minitel.

PROGRAMS FOR THE PEOPLE

In nationalistic societies, programs that benefit the masses are the rule rather than the exception. For example, in 1933 very few German families owned radios because they were very expensive and the capitalists liked it that way. The companies that sold radios wanted to make as much profit on each set as they possibly could. Maximum mark-up is the philosophy of the typical big businessman. So Dr. Josef Goebbels, who headed the Propaganda and Education Ministry under the new National Socialist government, ordered a radio to be developed that would be so cheap that every family could afford one, and this was done. Similarly, Hitler ordered the development of a cheap people's car that every man could own and the Volkswagen "Bug" was born.

The anti-Semitic nationalist Henry Ford had followed the same philosophy in the development of the Model T, despite the ferocious resistance of his fellow stockholders, such as the Dodge brothers who filed suit against him claiming he was going to bankrupt the company in a vain attempt to mechanize the country. But again, Ford was the exception to the rule and his philosophy of selling at low cost to gain high volume was overturned upon his death. The Ford Motor Co. then joined General Motors and the Chrysler Co.(founded by the Dodge brothers) in the method of maximum mark-up.

THE JAPANESE WAY

Japan is ostensibly capitalist, but in fact it operates in a fashion very similar to its pre-war method of governing. There is and always has been only one ruling party in Japan since the end of World War II and that is the Liberal Democratic Party. It operates via a committee structure that seeks consensus. Japanese society is nationalistic and so the government seeks to share the wealth of the country so that all benefit from its great economic success. Further the government directs and coordinates the efforts of private enterprise to strengthen the economy in areas critical to the nation's progress , to maximize employment and to promote greater international competitiveness.

When Japan's economy became overheated in the late 1960's a severe labor shortage developed, just as it did in West Germany and America at the same time. But whereas both West Germany and the United States imported foreign labor to "solve" the problem. The racialist and nationalist Japanese refused to do so. Instead they pressed for greater mechanization and increased technological development to make each worker more productive. So now they have eight times as many industrial robots as the U.S. and four times as many as West Germany, and no alien problem.

The Japanese reject the maximum mark-up approach and seek to sell at low cost in order to attain high volume. This means that their companies generally make a lower percentage profit than similar American companies, at least in the short term, but it also means that they employ more people because they are producing more goods for the same amount of money. In Japan companies are not ranked according to how much profit is made, but rather according to how many people are employed. Low cost products have allowed Japanese living standards to rise dramatically over the past thirty years such that most Japanese now live better than most Americans because of a more equitable distribution of the wealth. Moreover, the average Japanese family is able to save 20% of its income whereas the average American family is able to save only 4% of its income.

TECHNOLOGY FOR THE PEOPLE

Such is the difference between nationalist economics and capitalist economics. America too will one day have Minitel-like programs. But such technology-for-the-people government will not be seen in this country until the National Democratic Front takes power. GG

LETTERS

Dear Mr. Gallo and Staff:

I enjoyed the October issue of The Nationalist, as usual. Especially worthwhile are those meatier discussions like Mr. Malone's coverage of the Linnton Plant and the Weirton Plant. I've wondered why coops are not more common. It is a regrettable condition when the average person, after 40 or 50 years of production and service in corporate America, does not own a proportionate equity in it. Which is another way of restating the statistic regarding 95% of working Americans and their financial condition on approaching Social Security, they need every penny of it. One of the many problems for the NDF to tackle one of these days.

Danke, keep going.

WE WILL NOT BE CONQUERED!

WE WILL NOT BE DIVIDED!

THE PLAN of the big capitalists is "Divide and Conquer." They are determined to concentrate ever increasing wealth and power in their own hands, and to do this they isolate and attack the family farmer, the worker, and the small businessman each in turn. The political and media lapdogs of the rich tell us that the farmer wants too much for his crops, that the worker wants to do less for more money, and that the small businessman is inefficient. While at the same time the System subsidizes the wealthy through tax shelters, loopholes, and special projects. How long are we going to fall for this scam?

WHAT THE plutocrats fear most is a Nationalist because only Nationalism can unite the farmer, the worker, and the small businessman against the wealthy ruling class which rules not for the benefit of the People but for itself. Leaders have the duty to govern for the Nation as a whole - those that do not forfeit their right to lead.

THE PLUTOCRATS are in forfeit. Now it is up to us, the People, to take their power from them. It will be a long and hard struggle against an entrenched and powerful system, but in the end we will be successful if we can get small businessmen, farmers, workers of the hand and workers of the mind to set aside their selfish schemes, to reject the Self-Interest Ethic of capitalism, and to unite behind the National Democratic Front which is the only political movement in America dedicated to the interests of the White Nation as a whole.
